Emily (detail), charcoal, 16 x 14

by Brenda Hash, PSA

In this eight-week class we will work in charcoal pencil as we study each part of the human head (eyes, nose, mouth, forehead, ears, neck); their proportions and correct placement. With this approach and practice participants will have the necessary tools to construct accurate human heads from memory. Studying each feature in depth also greatly improves an artist's ability to capture a likeness in their portrait work. As a final project, each participant will construct a generic human head from the tools learned in this class.

To Register: Send half of the class fee now ($180) as a deposit, along with your contact information (phone #, email address, street address) to:
